

IPU National Pharmacy Conference 2023

There are only 23 days until we meet at the IPU National Pharmacy Conference. Click here to book your ticket.

The Minister for Health will address the Conference, so it is an opportunity for us to display our cohesiveness and strength as the key players in the health service and it is also an opportunity for members to ensure that the Minister is familiar with our concerns. It is important that we have a large number of pharmacists in attendance for him to hear your concerns.

This event is the first face to face conference since 2019 and will also mark the start of the celebrations of the 50th Anniversary of the IPU. The agenda for the event includes a number of excellent speakers and topics, and I would encourage you to take the time out of your busy schedule to attend.

For booking information and all the conference details including the agenda please click here.

When booking please remember to select the relevant day attendance ticket along with your President's Dinner tickets and also tick if you are attending the 'Free Event' on Friday night. Please note that the dress code for the President's Dinner is formal, black tie.
